Good Afternoon. Welcome to The Mongolian Gerbil Website!

Almost everyone, at one time or another, has heard of gerbils or jirds. Gerbils are very friendly, social, intelligent, funny, lively, and curious animals. They rarely bite and aren't easily frightened. These characteristics and also the fact that Mongolian gerbils are active by day, make these rodents great pets.

I love gerbils already for many years and noticed that people didn't know much about gerbils. And pet shops still give buyers of gerbils none or wrong information. That's why I have made this website, to give you the basic information you'll need when you have Mongolian gerbils or want to keep them. Besides that you'll find also some other interesting information on the fat-tailed gerbil. I hope you will enjoy this website.

There can be mistakes in my spelling and grammar on some pages. This is because I'm Dutch and live in the Netherlands. I would be very happy if you could contact me to report any grammatical errors.

Jew

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

For the Jewish religion, see Judaism. For other uses, see Jew \(disambiguation\).

A Jew (Hebrew: יהודי, Yehudi (sl.); יהודים, Yehudim (pl.); Ladino: ג'ודיו, Djudio (sl.); ג'ודיים, Djudios (pl.); Yiddish: ייד, Yid (sl.); יידן, Yidn (pl.))^[4] is a member of the Jewish people, an ethnoreligious group originating in the Israelites or Hebrews of the ancient Middle East. The ethnicity and the religion of Judaism, the traditional faith of the Jewish nation, are strongly interrelated, and converts to Judaism are both included and have been absorbed within the Jewish people throughout the millennia.

The Jews have suffered a long history of persecution in many different lands, and their population and distribution per region has fluctuated throughout the centuries. Today, most authorities place the number of Jews between 12 and 14 million, representing 0.2% of the current estimated world population.^[5] According to the Jewish Agency, for the year 2007 there are 13.2 million Jews worldwide; 5.4 million (40.9%) in Israel, 5.3 million (40.2%) in the United States, and the remainder distributed in communities of varying sizes around the world.^[6] These numbers include all those who consider themselves Jews whether or not affiliated, and, with the exception of Israel's Jewish population, do not include those who do not consider themselves Jews or who are not Jewish by halakha. The total world Jewish population, however, is difficult to measure. In addition to halakhic considerations, there are secular, political, and ancestral identification factors in defining who is a Jew that increase the figure considerably.^[6]

An explanation of our search results.

If you recently used Google to search for the word "Jew," you may have seen results that were very disturbing. We assure you that the views

“The beliefs and preferences of those who work at Google, as well as the opinions of the general public, do not determine or impact our search results”

Someone searching for information on Jewish people would be more likely to enter terms like "Judaism," "Jewish people," or "Jews" than the single word "Jew." In fact, prior to this incident, the word "Jew" only appeared about once in every 10 million search queries. Now it's likely that the great majority of searches on Google for "Jew" are by people who have heard about this issue and want to see the results for themselves.

The beliefs and preferences of those who work at Google, as well as the opinions of the general public, do not determine or impact our search results. Individual citizens and public interest groups do periodically urge us to remove particular links or otherwise adjust search results. Although Google reserves the right to address such requests individually, Google views the comprehensiveness of our search results as an extremely important priority. Accordingly, we do not remove a page from our search results simply because its content is unpopular or because we receive complaints concerning it. We will, however, remove pages from our results if we believe the page (or its site) violates our Webmaster Guidelines, we believe we are required to do so by law, or at the request of the webmaster who is responsible for the page.

We apologize for the upsetting nature of the experience you had using Google and appreciate your taking the time to inform us about it.

Sincerely,
The Google Team
